

PEOPLE'S CHOICE PUBLIC PREFER IPOD GIRL

The judges gave top prize to a haunting image of a Tunbridge Wells artist's dead mother but the public preferred this picture of a girl with an iPod. In a public vote at this year's BP Portrait Award nearly 26,000 people had their say on the pictures selected for display at the National Portrait Gallery. None of their favourite paintings matched the experts' top three. The popular vote went to iDeath by Czech artist Michael Ozibko, 29, for this giant oil portrait of friend Jana with iPod
